

Seven Simple and Slightly Silly Stories by John Foley

5 stars

I dare anyone to read this and not smile!

The title of this book says it all really; what we have are seven modern fables, each with more than a hint of whimsy.

All proceeds from this book go to MacMillan Cancer Support and The Silver Line charities. Whilst most people are familiar with MacMillan, Silver Line is less well-known; this charity provides a helpline for elderly people, providing friendship, information and advice. Conceived by Esther Rantzen, it launched in 2013 and has taken more than 1.5 million calls.

The seven stories in this book are utterly charming, totally unique, and yes, more than a little silly. They are very readable and would appeal to many children as well as adults.

Having just finished a rather harrowing thriller, these stories wrapped me in a comforting blanket and made me smile!
