

The President is Missing by Bill Clinton & James Patterson

5 stars

This could be made into a brilliant TV series!

President Jonathan (Jon) Lincoln Duncan is facing impeachment because he contacted Suliman Cindoruk, the leader of one of the most brutal terrorist organisations, Sons of Jihad. Cindoruk is not a religious fanatic. His sole purpose in life is to make money. Pres Duncan had called him to find out if they could reach some sort of agreement to save the USA from being completely crippled by a cyber-attack. Only eight people know that this attack is imminent and Duncan would rather face an impeachment hearing than admit to the catastrophic event that could strike in days.

Nina and Augie had worked as cyber terrorists for the Sons of Jihad. Nina is the creator of this deadly virus. Nina contacts Pres Duncan and lets him know that she is willing to help stop the threat on one condition, that she can return to her country of birth. Augie is in love with Nina and will do everything in his power to help her succeed in returning home, even if it means working with the USA. Cindoruk discovers the betrayal and sends one of the world's deadliest snipers to eliminate both Nina and Augie. They just hadn't expected Cindoruk to send an assassin after them.

There's everything you could want in the storyline. Good terrorists. Brilliant secret service. A military veteran as president. A sniper who won't give up. A traitor in the White House. It has it all!

This is a fast-paced thriller with so much action your head is left spinning by the pace. Read the book and decide for yourself! I personally think that it deserves five stars just for the action.
